

Promote and make your publications accessible through GPO's public dissemination programs.

Document Discovery will help make your online and print publications more visible. It's an easy, no cost way to reach the public with your agency's information.

document discovery

Your online and print publications are:

- accessible and searchable through the Catalog of U.S. Government Publications (<http://catalog.gpo.gov/>) and other GPO searching tools.
- promoted at Federal depository libraries nationwide by government documents librarians (www.gpo.gov/libraries).
- preserved through a permanent link to each publication to safeguard future access.
- distributed to library collections all over the country in over 1,000 locations.

Guidelines

Federal agencies are required by statutory mandate to provide Federal publications to the FDLP (44 USC 19). Let us help you meet those requirements.

Publications eligible for the Document Discovery program are publications of public interest, on any topic that is Federally-funded and not access-restricted.

Publications that are not eligible are those for internal agency use, restricted, classified, copyrighted, or with personally identifying information (PII).

Publications processed through GPO are automatically evaluated for inclusion in the dissemination programs. All other Federal agency publications will also be considered. GPO covers the cost of distributing eligible publications to libraries nationwide.

Process

It's easy to do!

1. Visit <http://bit.ly/usgpo>.
2. Fill out the short form, and tell us about your agency's publication.
3. GPO will handle the rest.

See what other Document Discovery participants have to say:

"...GPO helps NREL with broad dissemination of research results, especially to the university community and the general public. NREL's Web statistics show that this approach is working. GPO has been a great partner for us."

—Manager, Publishing and Document Services, National Renewable Energy Laboratory (NREL)

"...[We] direct users to information that is often more directly related to the topic than the resources they have found themselves."

—Government Documents Coordinator, library in South Carolina

"A large portion of reference questions (up to 20%) involve FDLP Government information and data."

—Government Documents Coordinator, library in California

"This information is, in many cases, unique, and it is priceless to our users."

—Government Documents Coordinator, library in Illinois

"We appreciate the interest in USGS scientific reports and the exposure that the Catalog of Government Publications provides."

—Web Services Coordinator, United States Geological Survey
